Stanford Dental Medicine & Surgery Fellowship

A one-year position in Dental Medicine & Surgery is available beginning July 1, 2020, through June 31, 2021, at Stanford University Medical Center. The candidate will acquire expertise in Oral & Maxillofacial Surgery, Hospital Dentistry, Dental Oncology, Dentoalveolar Trauma, and Oral Medicine. Stanford is a Level I Trauma Center as well as a Comprehensive Cancer Center.

The successful candidate will be appointed as a Clinical Instructor. The successful candidate will:

- play a vital role in the inpatient hospital, and ED on-call consult service for dental infections, trauma, and dental clearance under the supervision of the faculty;
- participate in outpatient clinics focused on dental oncology, oral surgery, oral pathology, and orofacial pain;
- perform dentoalveolar surgery, trauma stabilization, and treatment of oral and jaw pathology in the OR; and
- participate in the supervision of GPR Dental Residents and Senior Dental Students.

Opportunities are available for participation in global health, basic science, and clinical research projects, as well as medical device development. The candidate will work with three Oral & Maxillofacial Surgeons and five Hospital Dentists. Applicants are required to have an active dental license at the start of the fellowship, as well as one year of residency experience (GPR, AEGD, or specialty training).
